TEMPERANCE RALLY.

The second and last meeting in the interests of no-license was held in Town Hall, last Sunday evening, under the auspices of the no-license committee and the W. C. T. U. As in the case of the preceding meeting, the weather was not all that could have been desired, but even with this drawback there was a good attendance. A large chorus from the Christian Endeavor societies of the town had seats upon the platform, and their fine singing, under the efficient leadership of Mr. Stephen B. Wood, was a most enjoyable part of this well conducted meeting. The meeting opened with a selection by the chorus, "Praise Ye the Father."

Representative J. Howell Crosby, in opening the meeting, said that he felt it an honor to preside on such an occasion. As to the question if licenses should be granted in this town, nothing new can be said. We are not here to listen to elaborate arguments, but to take heart from each other. The best sign of the later years of the century is that men and women are beginning to see a common ground of agreement, in which there is no element of weakness nor surrender of principles. The result of this is felt in repeated no-license votes in many cities and towns, and we accept this result with joy and gratitude. It is no argument to say that the law is not enforced, and that liquor is sold in town. Let us not be deceived; it is for us to make the law, and for public sentiment to enforce it.

Mr. Crosby then introduced Mrs. Katharine Lente Stevenson, State president of the W. C. G. W., as the first speaker. Mrs. Stevenson made a most brilliant address, looking at the matter from a different standpoint than any other speaker so far heard in this campaign. She expressed her pleasure at meeting the citizens of Arlington at their annual rally. The subject might be somewhat hackneyed, but the more we contemplate old truths, the more inspired we shall be. If she were to choose a text to speak from, it would be the words, "This is the condemnation, that light is come into the world, and men love darkness rather than light because their deeds are evil." The darkness of ignorance is rebuked by the light of knowledge, and a great condemnation is pronounced upon those who having received the light choose to abide in darkness. All through past history light has been increasing from the beginning, so that while only a ray of it appeared to those who heard Christ, we now understand what truth really is. Things that were thought right in one age are known to be wrong in this. Of this fact we have the institution of slavery as an example. There was a time when liquor was universally used and seemed necessary. That time is forever past because of the light that has come on this subject. The first step in temperance reform came in the line of moderate drinking. In the early days there was a church in the West which acquired the name of the "Forty Gallon Church" because they voted that no member should consume more than forty gallons of liquor for himself, forty gallons for his wife, and forty gallons for each member of his family.

Light on this subject has come from God's Word, and that new revelation of God's Word turned science. Experience has been proving for generations that the drunkard, in spite of all else, becomes a nuisance to society at large. The vast majority of crimes of all nations can be traced to drunkenness. We now see our danger because we are beginning to understand that awful law of heredity which visits the sins of the fathers upon the children unto the third and fourth generation. Science shows to us, and especially that branch of science known as sociology, that the drunkard is an element of degeneracy in every community. The moderate drinker is more common in theory than in practice, many going down the inclined plain swiftly and becoming drunkards in the end. But if this were not the case, science again shows us that even a moderate drinker would not be at his best physically, mentally or spiritually. We should be thankful that the workers of the W. C. T. U. have been able to show the effect of alcohol on the physical life, and to teach the children at an impressionable age that if they drink they are going to make it impossible for them to be the man or the woman they might otherwise be.

A light has been thrown upon the traffic in the last few years, and we understand much better the relation of the community to the saloon. The latter is a constant menace to the best life of any town or city, as a majority of our crimes come from the saloon. The saloon has come to be a large factor in our political life; this arrogant power says to our law-makers, "go" and they

TOWN MEETING.

The annual town meeting, held on Monday, March 6, proved more exciting and attracted much more general interest than had been anticipated up to within a few days of its occurrence. The day proved unusually bright and sunny, this fact aiding to a considerable extent the efforts of the political workers interested in getting out a large vote. Popular interest was principally centered in the election of an assessor for a term of three years, the contestants being Mr. Leon A. Bowers, who ran on nomination papers, and Mr. Lucian C. Tyler, the nominee of the citizens' caucus, although there had been nomination papers filed for both auditors and constables, and the license question brought out a big vote. The meeting was called to order promptly at 6 o'clock by Town Clerk B. Delmont Locke. The necessary routine business was disposed of as quickly as possible, and the organization completed by the unanimous election of Mr. Walter A. Robinson as moderator. After this the polls were at once opened and voting proceeded at a lively rate.

The friends of both the candidates for assessor worked hard, and up to noon the result was in doubt, with the chances slightly in favor of Mr. Bowers; but in the afternoon Mr. Tyler's supporters rallied, and by the hardest kind of work succeeded in landing their man by a majority of 127 votes. At 10.40 a total of 490 votes had been cast, and when the polls closed at 5 o'clock the register on the ballot box showed 961. Of these, 32 were women's votes cast for members of the school committee.

The polls being closed at 5 o'clock, the meeting was called to order for the transaction of the other business upon the warrant. It was voted that when the meeting adjourn it adjourn to Monday evening, March 27, at 7.30. The following motion was made by Mr. William G. Peck: "Voted, that a committee of three, of whom the moderator shall be one, be appointed by the chair to select a committee of 21, and that all articles in the warrant involving an appropriation of money be referred to said committee of 21 without debate; said committee shall consider all articles so referred, and make report thereof in print with their recommendations."

PERHAM'S PHARMACY, P. O. BLD'G

DARING BURGLARY.

What may be termed a malicious burglary was perpetrated at William E. Wood's factory on Wednesday night. The burglar—or, more probable, burglars—found no difficulty in entering the factory, as its outside doors are never locked. The burglars, once inside the building, made their way to the office, and, by breaking a light of glass, unhappened the window, and thereby gained access to the office. Mr. James, the bookkeeper, had it not been for the broken glass would not at first have suspected that anything had gone wrong. On going to the safe, Mr. James found everything apparently right, but on attempting to open it he soon discovered that the combination would not work. Finally he made a direct attempt to open the doors of the safe, when, behold, it was discovered that the burglars had gotten inside of it, in their midnight raid. The safe had been opened by the burglars in the regular way. In reaching the cash box they took all the money in bills, amounting to something like a $100; but, singular as it may seem, did not take the silver, which lay alongside the bills—most likely they did not wish to be weighed down in anyway to hinder their flight. They managed somehow to take off the plate from the inner surface of the door, when they so tampered with the works of the lock that the combination was thrown out of gear—this done they closed the door of the safe, unquestionably thinking the door could not be reopened without the aid of skill from Boston. In all this they saw a day or more for them in their safe leave-taking. But the door opened easily, in spite of their manipulations. The pure "cussedness," or, in softer terms, the maliciousness of their burglary, is seen in the fact that they substantially destroyed the day book and ledger of the factory. They took the ledger and mutilated it by cutting therefrom many of its pages, and then threw the book into the vault. The daybook was also destroyed, and the cash book and certain memoranda are not to be found. The keys of the type-writer had been so pounded and damaged that the machine was made worthless. It is sometimes said that "there is honor among thieves," but surely the burglars of Wednesday night

ARLINGTON HAS AGAIN SPOKEN.

Arlington has again spoken for the right upon the no-license question, and this, too, by an increased majority in the generous and emphasized vote she gave on Monday. Her declaration at the ballot box is an assurance that our children and our homes are to be still protected, so far as possible, from the blighting influence of intemperance. It is peculiarly fitting that this delightful town of ours, "beautiful of situation," and midway between Bunker Hill and Lexington, and within hand's reach of both these historic localities, should be ever watchful of that manifold independence and liberty to secure which the fathers fought and died. Arlington has reassured her rights without making apologies for so doing. She has said to the rum traffic, we will not allow you to bring to our people desolation, poverty and death through your nefarious business. We will not allow you to despoil virtue, and rob our children of their birthright. Thou shalt not approach within our borders. Arlington is ours, and we will defend her to the last. In this battle against the saloon, there shall be on our part, no surrender. Much credit is due our people for the zealous work they have done to bring about the magnificent result of Monday. For the increased majority given to the no-license vote we have reason to swing our hats and shout our loudest huzzas. Arlington is safe, thank God. No stain upon the flag she floats. Her invitation to the stranger is, come and make your home with us. Come and share with us the moulding influences of our schools and our churches, breathe in this pure, exhilarating air, engage in our varied enterprises, happy in the assurance that that demon, that prince of devils, the rum power, has been dethroned and utterly routed so far as Arlington is concerned.

Just see how the late Horace Mann depicts him who is a slave to intoxicating drinks: "How nature pours rheum over his eyes, sends tremor along every muscle, sends foul spirits to inhabit his breath, and finally brings him upon all-fours, that she may swear she never made him." But Arlington has at present no occasion for temperance editorials or temperance lectures, for she believes in and has voted herself "the cup that cheers but which does not inebriate." With a past, of which we all are proud, Arlington has before her a still more promising future. As a residential locality she offers every inducement. As a business place she rightfully invites the investment of capital. She is, indeed, possessed of all those qualities which commend her to the stranger who is seeking a home for himself and family. We must, however, at no time forget that the survival and continuance of her good name must be at the price of that eternal vigilance which takes no day off, and which recognizes no sleeping hour.

THE LAW OF AVERAGES.

The law of averages holds good the world over. No one possesses all the advantages, while some one else possesses all the disadvantages. There is an exact mathematical adjustment between loss and compensation. While all the outward world is lost to him bereft of sight, yet to his more acute ear come all the diviner harmonies of the universe. The poor laboring man, earning his bread under the sweltering sun of a midsummer day without a dollar that he can call his own, is in the full enjoyment of such health that gives zest to his daily life. Dyspepsia and a thousand and one other ills known to him who lives a life of luxurious ease, seldom or never approaches the poor man's door. The infinite wisdom of God was brought into His plan of creation, so that all things have been admirably adjusted. It will be found in the more accurate solution of the equation of life, that a plus quantity is the result. There can be no mistake made in the grand summing up.

The best of us are oftentimes in a complaining mood over what seems to us our unfortunate condition, when, as a matter of fact, what we term our undesirable surroundings, are to prove the very means of developing the true man and the true woman. "We come up out of great tribulation," as the scriptures put it. Now, the word "tribulation" is derived from the same original as our English word "threshed." To get at the wheat, the straw must first be threshed, and in much the same way do we get at the best there is in the human kind. You will get but little sympathy or aid from that man who is so prosperous that he begins to think that he is running things in accordance with his own sweet will. The average man must be threshed and pounded that he may come to his better self. While the process is unpleasant and disagreeable, the results are admirable. Many a man has been made all over anew by losing every penny he possessed. When a man gets to worshipping his silver and his gold, it becomes a necessity that his earthly possessions be taken from him, and, while he regards all this as a personal loss, yet it is nothing other to him than a personal gain. The miser who counts his money by day and dreams of it by night, can only be brought to himself through the utter destruction of his idol. To save the man, heroic means must frequently be employed, and when he is saved, all is saved. While all this taking-away of material worth is written down by most men as loss, the compensation is had in that higher manhood and that higher womanhood which are developed thereby. It is not only scripturally true, but it is philosophically true as well, that in order to find the individual life, the individual must first lose that life.

According to our system of reckoning, things often seem to go by contraries, and yet, underneath all, there is that everlasting law of proportion and harmony which never fail to do their perfect work.

SAY SO NOW.

Say that pleasant word you have in mind concerning your friend now, while he is living. Don't wait until you shall follow his remains to the grave and there pay that tribute to his memory which would have been such a satisfaction and delight to him if paid him while in the body. Hasn't it ever occurred to you how few and far between, are the good words we speak to that man or woman who is working faithfully along the line of some noble effort? Remember that no human voice can reach the cemetery, and that every tear shed over the grave of the departed will pass all unnoticed by the occupant of that "narrow house." Don't hesitate to take your friend by the hand and assure him that you gladly appreciate the part he is performing in life. Don't tell somebody else, but tell him. How much we all need the strengthening words of another? Such encouragement is beyond all computation of value. They make the weak strong, the sick well, while they give renewed life to those who are about to fall under the burdens of their daily toil. If you love your friend, tell him so, and no longer excuse yourself from so doing by repeating that old, familiar saying that "actions speak louder than words." The word must emphasize the act, while the act must emphasize the word. Each is the supplement and complement of the other. An appreciative word spoken in the very presence of him deserving it, comes oftentimes as that revelation by which all things become new. It gives inspiration and a holier desire for living. No longer, then, withhold that meed of praise which is due another. "We come this way but once," so let us be sure that we speak a good word in passing.

THE STUPID MAN.

By the above heading we not mean that man who is a fool, but that individual who is so dull and slow of comprehension, that he does not see a joke until the next day. We mean that man who is so obtuse in recognizing the point under discussion, that there seems no other way of getting a new idea into his head than by shooting it in. One who has no sympathy with you in your enthusiastic appreciation of a delicately tinted western sky; one who cares little or nothing for all that is beautiful in nature. We mean that man upon whose ear the divinest harmonies fall absolutely lifeless and without meaning. How, sometimes when we have met these stupid fellows, we wished that the power was ours to call down from the heavens above a thunderbolt that their intellect might receive a jolt. But we have these stupid men in all departments of life, so we must bear with them as best we can. We have them occasionally in the pulpit, where they impose themselves upon a long suffering and patient people, by insisting that "the Lord has called them." More or less frequently we find these slow coaches, at the bar attempting to explain the intricate points of that law of which they are profoundly ignorant. And sometimes we find these representatives of an unendurable stupidity attempting to practice medicine under the protection of the "M. D." they have gotten, but just how, God only knows. It is fortunate for these medicinal know-nothings, that the terms, "bilious," "malarial" and "heart failure" have become a part of the nomenclature of the medical world; for when all else fails them in an intelligent diagnosis of the case they are treating, they can easily declare that the patient is bilious, or has malaria, and that finally he dies of heart failure. But who does not die of heart failure? And then again we have more than a proportionate share of these stupid fellows in journalism. There are lots of men who having failed in every attempt they ever made in business life, just think they can run a country or suburban newspaper. So at it they go with pen well in hand, and the dictionary at their elbow. But the first thing they hear is "we don't take your paper out of the wrapper." And so it is that these stupid fellows work themselves into almost every professional and business department of active labor. It isn't so much revivals in the religious world that we need, as it is revivals in the world of common sense. Many a stupid man should rise for prayers, that all sensible men might plead for him, not so much that his heart should be converted, as that his brain should be somehow made able to take in an average idea, within a reasonable length of time. "Deliver us" is our prayer, "from the stupid man."

STAYING QUALITIES.

Few men are possessed of what is termed the staying qualities. By this we mean those qualities which will cause a man to stick by you through thick and thin. We all have lots of fair-weather friends—they pop up at every corner of the road, when things are running smoothly with you, and they do not hesitate to proffer you their aid just at that moment when you are abundantly able to help yourself. What pledges of everlasting friendship we have received when our sun was apparently facing the meridian! And so have you, who read these columns. But when the night seemed about to shut down what a scattering among those who had sworn such loyalty to you! The difficulty with the most of assumed and self-declared friends is, that they have not the staying qualities. So many people lack what is known in philosophy as the power of adhesion. They never stick to anybody or anything. They fly off at a tangent the very moment you need sympathy or material aid. "Thou knowest that I love thee" is their favorite affirmation. Friendship real and true, is a plant of slow growth. It doesn't spring up in a night time. Don't believe every man who is ready to swear by all that is good and holy, that he is your friend. Test him, when your business goes all askew and you are likely to find yourself flat on your back. One's staying qualities can only reveal themselves in times of misfortune and adversity. You can safely count him your friend who is more than willing to assist you to your feet, when you are down. But thank God there are a few of the human kind who will stick to you through evil report as well as good report. But most men, taken at their best, are "Peters" after all.

That man who is honest simply because it is the best policy, is the biggest cheat of all.

CONGRATULATIONS.

The Enterprise hastens to extend its congratulations to Miss Ida F. Robbins for that magnificent vote of 735 given her on Monday, in her candidature for membership upon the school board of Arlington. And we congratulate Arlington as well, in paying such generous and worthy tribute to a woman who so favorably and well, represents her sex. Miss Robbins received the largest vote as a school candidate. Her election to the Board of Education cannot fail to bring to our public schools that progressive spirit which will do much by way of infusing new life into our educational system of instruction.

That last temperance rally on Sunday evening in the Town Hall was the shot that killed. The six clergymen of Arlington and the laymen as well, aimed straight for the bull's eye, and they then and there bagged their game. To know you are right is more than half the battle. When a unanimous "Amen" can go up for the work to be done, then nothing less than victory can come of it. Well done Arlington.

To get the latest news, read the Enterprise. Who knew anything of the burglary at Mr. Wood's factory before they read an account of it in these columns? And yet it all happened on Wednesday night, and in immediate neighborhood to that weekly publication which has pompously declared itself as follows: "We recognize no opposition." The Enterprise is not only catching on, but it is holding on with a mighty grip. Read it if you don't want to get left in. all that is latest. Last year's almanacs are of little or no service. A LITTLE OF EVERYTHING.

Isn't it singular that most men in addressing a public audience will insist upon speaking in a declamatory voice. This is notably true of clergymen. The minister usually has his professional tone of voice, as well as his professional style of dress. Now all this, in my estimation is extremely unfortunate. Why not read the hymn of praise, as you would read any verse expressive of poetical sentiment? Why should the clergyman read the scriptural lesson of a Sunday morning, in such an unnatural way? Just step into a Friday evening prayer meeting and listen to the doleful voices both in prayer and exhortation! One of the attractive features of Bayard Taylor in public speech was the fact that he always spoke in a conversational tone.

One of the commonest faults of the American writer, is a redundancy of language. He has the habit some have of piling up expletives. The adjective, and especially the superlative form of it, is his peculiar weakness. Emerson hated the superlative, and seldom or never did he use it.

It was on a cold winter morning in the early seventies, that I made the little town of Warren, in Illinois, on my way eastward, and never shall I forget how at that point one of those genial old gentlemen, whose face is an invitation to all good things, came aboard, and shared my seat. After the usual greetings of the morning, my new made friend and myself fell into conversation concerning various topics of the hour. Finally our discussion took a religious turn. I soon found that Mr. Carr (that was his name) was a confirmed spiritualist, and it was his pleasure to tell me how he became a firm believer in spiritualism. His story was as follows, and I was deeply interested in his narration. It should be said at the outset that Mr. Carr had never given a thought to spiritualism previous to the personal experiences that came to him at his quiet home in Illinois. It was a pleasant spring morning in the early April of 1865, as he told me, that while engaged in cutting up his woodpile, there appeared to him in mid-air a visible form, with a veritable voice which spoke to him in this wise: "Do you, Mr. Carr, go at once to Washington, and say to Abraham Lincoln that he is in immediate danger of assassination." Mr. Carr at first thought that both the vision and the voice came from a diseased imagination—but as his singular experience with the form in mid-air was repeated morning after morning, he finally packed his trunk and made his way to the national capital. On reaching Washington and after having secured a boarding place, and a good night's rest, he started early the next morning for the White House. But President Lincoln was so busy with the closing scenes of the war, that Mr. Carr at first failed to get the interview that he so much desired. In no way discouraged and determined to deliver the message intrusted to him, he made his way regularly for several mornings to the White House; so frequently indeed had he been seen by President Lincoln awaiting him in the lobby, that the President on account of the importunity of Mr. Carr, at last said "admit him." On approaching the president, Mr. Lincoln said "well sir, what can I do for you?" To which Mr. Carr replied "you can do nothing for me sir; but I have come 1200 miles to do something for you." "Well," answered Mr. Lincoln, "this is a little peculiar"—adding "people usually want me to do something for them, and here you are 1200 miles from home, to do something for me," "please be seated." Then Mr. Carr related to Mr. Lincoln how the form in mid air had said to him "go to Washington and tell Mr. Lincoln that he is in immediate danger of assassination." Mr. Lincoln became deeply interested in the remarkable experiences of Mr. Carr, and said to him as he left the White House, "Good bye Mr. Carr, and may God bless you in being true to the heavenly vision." The message delivered, Mr. Carr made his way home, where a day or two after he heard of the assassination of President Lincoln by J. Wilkes Booth. The story interested me so much, that I at once wrote to the postmaster at Warren, Illinois, asking if there was in his town, a man by the name of Joseph B. Carr, and if so did he go to Washington in the spring of 1865, to notify President Lincoln that he was in danger of assassination, a fact communicated to him in the way he claimed. The postmaster, after due time, replied to my note of inquiry saying substantially "there is a Mr. Joseph B. Carr residing here, and who has resided here for years and who went to Washington as he claims to deliver his remarkable message to President Lincoln." The postmaster added that Mr. Carr was an excellent citizen of the town, and a man of recognized honesty and intelligence. This wonderful story I relate as told to me. How do you explain it?

"Yes, the old man caught me Hobsonizing his daughter."
"And—"
"And then he Eganized me."

How mean some men are? Did you ever hear of the man who gave the brave little boy ten cents for saving him from drowning? And how suggestive and timely the reply of the boy! Looking at the ten-cent bit, he said: "Mister, I can't change it."

Don't be too much affected by a tear; for there are those who can weep at any time. Many a woman has gained her point by having "a real good cry." A woman in tears will bring most men to their knees.

Formerly there was such a thing as etiquette shown in the electric car, or rather in those times, the horse car. It was on a beautiful October day in the early sixties that I was making my way to Boston from what was then West Cambridge on which occasion the car was so crowded that there was hardly standing room left. The late Edward Everett, a passenger on board, seeing the packed condition of the car, kindly and most politely invited one of the prettiest and most popular of the young ladies of West Cambridge, at that time, to a seat in his lap, which invitation the young lady had the good sense to gracefully accept. That young lady is now one of the most popular women in Arlington. There was no mistaking the etiquette of the earlier times.

The letter from the Rev. John M. Mulcahy, pastor of St. Malachy's Church, read at the temperance rally on Sunday evening, in the Town Hall, unquestionably increased the majority vote upon the no-license question. The letter reads substantially as follows:

Arlington, Mar. 5, '99.

Rev. and Dear Sir:

In reply to your kind invitation to attend a meeting at the Town Hall, this evening, I will say that unavoidable circumstances will prevent my presence, and I must forgo the pleasure of being with you on the occasion and lending my humble assistance to the good cause. That my sympathy is with you in any move to promote temperance and encourage sobriety in our Arlington community, I know that you have no doubt.

In reply to your inquiry as to the expediency of licensing the sale of liquor in the town of Arlington, I say that under no circumstances would I favor it. I want to know of no opportunity to buy liquor in our town; no place where the young and innocent may be tempted to fall into a vice that will ruin them for time and eternity.

I am very sincerely yours,

JOHN M. MULCAHY,

Pastor of St. Malachy's Church.

Camp 45 meets next Tuesday evening in G. A. R. Hall. A full attendance is desired as visiting brothers from Boston will be present.

Our congratulations Messrs. Tyler and Jones.

Sunday is Mid-Lent Sunday. Then follow Passion-Sunday and Palm Sunday. Easter is rapidly approaching, Easter Day falling this year on April 2nd.

Owing to the setting up of our press and the unavoidable delays, which are bound to come, we appear late.

The Rev. Percy Jordan, of St. James' Cambridge preached at St. John's last evening. We call special attention to the announcement that the Rev. Dean Hodges, of the Episcopal Theological Seminary, will preach next Friday evening, the 17th. Dr. Hodge's ability as a preacher and writer is well recognized, and it is fortunate that the town and the parish are able to secure the privilege of a visit from a man so much in demand.

Universalist Fair at the vestry of the church, Wednesday and Thursday March 22, 23. Supper will be served on Thursday evening only. Wednesday evening a unique and interesting thing will be the "Pedler's Parade."

A concert of considerable merit is being arranged for at the Universalist Church for the week after Easter. It will be first class in every way. The "Choral Class" connected with the "Woman's Club" will sing, and talent of an equal high order has been engaged.

Bear in mind the concert which Mr. Dineen will give in Town Hall on Friday next, at eight o'clock, p. m. The talent is excellent. Those who fail to attend the concert will miss a rare treat. Tickets are only 35 cents.

Arlington, March 9, 1899.

Editor Arlington Enterprise.

Dear Sir: I take pleasure in sending to you the following copy of a resolution passed at the annual meeting of Universalist parish:

We, the members of the First Universalist Society of Arlington, at this our annual meeting by this formal vote of thanks, desire to manifest to the Arlington Enterprise our consciousness of the many favors shown the society through the columns of the paper.

Truly yours,

L. K. RUSSELL,

Clerk pro tem.

It is enough to make a man split his sides with laughter, as he recognizes what is so apparent to all namely: that the Arlington Enterprise, which the weekly journal published at 446 Mass. ave. so stoutly refuses to recognize, is causing the editor of that editorial reprint to pat his enemies on the back.

The Crescent Rental & Realty Co., report the sale of the Nickerson Estate, 13 Academy St., comprising house and 20,430 sq. ft. of land facing the new Town Hall site. This property is assessed for $5,770 and sold largely in excess of this amount. This is considered one of the best locations in this town, and the purchaser, Mr. Alfred P. Gage of Arlington, buys for investment.

The regular monthly meeting of the Arlington Historical Society was held last Monday evening in Pleasant Hall, Maple street, there being a good attendance of the members. Routine business was disposed of and then the matter of the celebration of Patriot's Day was taken up. The following gentlemen were appointed a committee from the Improvement Association, Messrs. Warren A. Peirce, Charles S. Parker, Roland A. Swan, Frank W. Hodgdon, and George W. W. Sears. It was also announced that the society had had the good fortune to secure as the orator of the day the Rev. Edward G. Porter of Lexington. Mrs. Damon then read Kipling's "Recessional" in a highly impressive manner. Mr. James P. Parmenter, the speaker of the evening gave a paper on Lafayette, speaking of his work in more general terms than the announced subject of "Lafayette's Visit to America in 1824" would permit us to publish owing to crowded columns. The society expressed their thanks to Mr. Parmenter for his able and interesting paper by a unanimous rising vote.

The complimentary party that was given Miss Langley on Tuesday evening in Grand Army Hall, in recognition of her services in instructing a class of adults in dancing, was well deserved. Somewhere about forty couples were present. Mrs. Henry Hornblower and Mrs. Charles Devereaux assisted Miss Langley in her reception of the friends present. The ladies were in evening dress. The party made up an attractive scene as it engaged in the mazy dance. Mr. Hardy, our popular caterer provided a sumptuous collation. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Martin, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hornblower, Mr. and Mrs. Devereaux, Miss Devereaux, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Wood, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Chesterton, Dr. and Mrs. Hooker, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Phinney, Dr. and Mrs. J. W. Bailey, Dr. and Mrs. E. Stickney, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Higgins, Dr. and Mrs. Young, Mr. and Mrs. Otis R. Whittemore, Mr. and Mrs. William Kellogg, Miss Lowe, Mr. and Mrs. Learned, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Reed, Mr. W. B. Jones, Mrs. Joseph P. Wyman, Miss Pratt, Miss Knowles, Mr. and Mrs. Louis W. Reyroft, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Richards, Mrs. Adeline Templer, Miss Hartwell, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Farmer, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Stevens, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Hardy Jr., Mr. and Mrs. M. Earnest Moore, Mr. and Miss Yeames, Mrs. J. Fred Brackett, and others. The ushers were Dr. Bailey, Mr. Reed, Mr. Jones, and Mr. Whittemore.

No-license rally concluded.

Roman Catholic fellow citizens will sit with us, and the priest will sit on the platform with us. At this point Mr. Watson read a letter from Fr. Mulcahy, who had been invited to attend the meeting, regretting his inability to be present. Among other things Fr. Mulcahy said: "My sympathy is with you. Under no circumstances would I favor license in our town." The reading of this letter was followed by hearty applause from the audience. Mr. Watson continued his remarks. Sometime we will place the emphasis on men, women and children instead of on material things. The saloon keeper puts the emphasis on the man; through the man, woman and child to wealth is their course. They are after the boys. Would you set up a saloon in Arlington? Wouldn't it seem strange to see one on our avenue? We would be criminally stupid to set it up here by our own votes—we would be worse than a pack of fools. Tomorrow is the day; we are difficult to satisfy; the majority is not large enough. Too many let the matter go by default. Let us strive to hasten the time when all men shall be brothers.

The meeting closed with the singing of "America" by the chorus and audience.

Last evening the Veteran Fireman's Association met in Menotomy Hall, the future headquarters of this organization. New names are being added to the membership list weekly.

S. Stickney & Co. have painted and renovated their store, and have a new line of paints, window glass, and wall paper. Don't forget that they are doing gas fitting, plumbing, steam fitting, and that all work done by this firm is first class.

The Rev. James Yeames will Preach at both the services at St. John's Church on Sunday next. Morning service at 10.30. Evening service will be henceforward held (beginning to morrow) at seven o'clock. It is intended to make the Sunday evening service—Evangelism and Sermon—bright and brief, as nearly as possible within the limits of an hour.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS.

The heights made a fine showing at the polls.

A coal and oil house is being erected just at the west of the Arlington Heights depot.

The Park Avenue Ladies' Aid Society met on Tuesday afternoon in the parlors of the church.

Andrew Wilson, clerk in Cushing's store, put in some effective electioneering on Monday.

The friends of Mrs. Lewis will be glad to learn that she is recovering from her recent illness.

The Sunshine Club met with Mrs. A. Kimball on Friday afternoon at 10 Webster street.

The Tip-Top Whist Club gave its last party for the present season on Wednesday evening at the house of Mrs. Moore.

Miss Emma Tolman, who is a frequent visitor at the home of Mrs. T. A. Jernegan, has returned to her home in Newton.

The new and attractive house being erected for Mr. Joseph H. Eaton on Vine street, will be up to date in all modern conveniences.

Arlington Heights evidently does not believe that the winter is yet over, at any rate we saw on Thursday three coalmen dumping into one bin a generous supply of anthracite.

Next Wednesday the Hillside Literary Union will hold an open meeting at which gathering Dr. Arthur H. Ring will deliver a lecture on "First Aid to the Injured." The members will serve light refreshments to the friends present.

A birthday party is to be given in aid of the Baptist Church on Thursday evening of next week at the house of Mr. John Findly, Grove st. It is hoped that each one present will give as many pennies to the cause as he is years old.

The usual services will be held at the Park Avenue Church on Sunday. In the morning the Rev. Dr. Stenbridge will preach the first of a series of sermons, the texts of which are to be selected by the congregation. The subject on next Sunday morning will be the "Immortality of the Soul."

Mr. and Mrs. Walter B. Farmer started for Washington on Friday, stopping over in New York to take in the sportsman's show. Mr. and Mrs. Farmer are to be away two weeks. Mr. Farmer, who is president of the New England Bolt and Nut Co., on Atlantic ave., Boston, will also go to visit Wilmington Delaware where the firm has large iron mills.

The Christian Endeavor meeting will be held at 6 p. m., led by Charles W. Tukey. At 7.15 there will be a musical service in the Park Avenue Church, consisting of anthems and plantation melodies as sung by the Tennessee Jubilee Singers. This service of song will be under the direction of J. K. Mann, W. E. Lloyd, and Harlan Bean.

The Christian Endeavorers held a business meeting which was well attended. A committee consisting of Miss Mable Snow, Miss Margaret Henderson, and Mr. Herbert Snow was selected to report at the next meeting. Subsequently a mystery social was held which all enjoyed.

Forty-six members are pledged to the Congregational Church now being formed, and fifteen more members will join at an early date. This new church is starting out under the most favorable auspices—the membership is in entire accord, while the pastor the Rev. Dr. Stenbridge is devoting both his time and ability to the new movement. The Arlington Heights Congregational Church has a promising field for its work: This locality is receiving new comers each year; and their first inquiry is in relation to church and school privileges, and replies to both queries can be answered most favorably. The Rev. Dr. Stenbridge has his work well in hand, and his heart is in his work so that with a united people there is no reason why the Congregational church under his charge shall not receive such additions to its membership, that shall ensure the highest welfare of its immediate future.

The very first thing that Arlington center and the heights should do is to see that no feeling of sectionalism exists between the two localities. We are one and inseparable, and all under the management of the same town officials. And yet this sectional or pride, or whatever else you may call it, occasionally crops out. We are not quite able to understand why the Rev. Dr. Stenbridge and the Rev. Mr. Vinal, pastors of the two churches here, should not have been invited to the temperance rally held in the Unitarian Church on Sunday evening, Feb. 26th, and to that other rally held in the Town Hall on Sunday evening, March 5th, other than on the ground that the Rev. Dr. Stenbridge and the Rev. Mr. Vinal hail from the heights instead of from the center proper. Let us be especially watchful that we do not get this spirit of sectionalism mixed up with our religion. It will probably not be asked of us when we enter heaven, whether we are from Arlington or Arlington Heights.

His Annoying Problem.

"I wonder," she said, knitting her brows in a perplexed way, "whether"—And then she paused. It was her first experience in keeping house on an allowance, and naturally many problems presented themselves.

"I wonder," she repeated, "whether, when woman comes into her proper sphere and exercises her rightful influence, if she legislates the first of every month out of existence the bills will come in the second day or will be entirely abolished. I think the plan would be worth trying, anyway."—Chicago Post Didn't Admire American Children.

An American lady in Berlin had occasion to talk to her hostess about American children. "I have read of them," said the German woman proudly. "I have of them in English read. I have two stories read that I might know. I do not wish to go to America. I have read 'Peck's Bad Boy' and 'Helen's Babies.' Ah! I stay by the German children so!"—New York World.

A Bamboo Bridge.

A British consular report from the far east describes a suspension bridge of 800 feet span made of bamboo. The cane is split up into fibers and twisted together to form the cables. Considering its span, the material of the structure is quite remarkable. The old tradition that almost anything can be made out of bamboo receives here a good illustration in the field of engineering.

important meeting last Tuesday evening.
The St. Joseph S. and B. society will hold a meeting next Friday evening on Common street.
The Ladies' Hospital Aid Society met on Monday afternoon at the house of Mrs. H. O. Underwood.
The next meeting of the Round About Club will be held at the home of Mrs.
Wellington. Miss Burbank will read a paper on Ralph Waldo Emerson.
A portion of the flooring in the stables of William Dunford gave way on Wednesday, whereby one of his horses was so injured that a veterinary was called.
The Young Peoples' Orchestra, Master Robert Hernandez, Miss Emily Hunt, Miss Adaline Swift and Miss Jane Swift add much to the power and interest of the opening service at the Unitarian school.
The Belmont Tennis Club, having had such encouraging success in its games, is making preparations for another game at an early date. Miss Adams and Miss Swift, the committee of arrangements, have the matter in hand.
At the next meeting of the Woman's Alliance, to be held in the Unitarian Sunday School room, papers on George Eliot, Margaret Fuller, E. Ossoli, Jenny Lind, and Charlotte Cushman will be read by the young ladies of the parish.
There will be four special evening services at the Unitarian Church, beginning at 7.30 p. m. next Sunday, on which occasion Rev. Hilary Bygrave will speak on "Certain Aspects of Life." The subject next Sunday evening will be "Limitations of Life." Soloist, Miss invitation is extended to all.

Mr. T. F. Powers, foreman at Towers' ivory factory, while making his way on Tuesday morning to his work, was struck by the inward bound train from the west and seriously injured. He was taken to the Mass. General Hospital, where the physicians found his collar bone broken and several ribs fractured. Mr. Powers is doing well under medical treatment and will recover.
The Ladies' Aid Society of the Waltham Hospital, Belmont branch, will hold a Vaudeville show in Belmont Town casion a song sheet to which will be sung an animated song. There will be several professional stars taking part, but not in the least to be outshone by some of our local talent. The object is to aid the Hospital in its good work.

Seldom have the people of Belmont had such an opportunity to enjoy themselves as on Thursday evening when the Belmont High School A. A. gave the Minstrel Show. The affair was a decided success socially and financially. All reserved tickets were sold.
It may be said that the Belmont High School Athletic Association in the entertainment exceeded the expectations of its many friends. The hall was so crowded, that not a few occupied the steps of the balcony. The following are the members of the association who took part. Edward Davis interlocutor.

go, "stay" and they stay. Such is this man-defying, God-defying power of the saloon, which should be denounced as inimical to the best life of man.
There are several arguments advanced why there should be a saloon and why Arlington should open its doors to the business. It is said that it is necessary for our temporal welfare that we need the money that comes from licenses for the use of the town. Yet we know that this is not a help but a drawback. Carroll D. Wright, the eminent statistician has proved that for every dollar received for licenses twenty dollars as spent for police expenditures, prisons, and insane asylums, the direct fruitage of the saloon. Some say that individual liberty is at stake. If a man has a right to drink he has a right to buy liquor. To this we reply that your rights end where ours begin. Any community has a right to quiet streets and safeguarded homes, and anything which tends to make them otherwise should be outlawed.
The great danger comes from the men who are respectable citizens, but who do not take the trouble to go to the polls and vote on this question. We need the eternal vigilance which is the price of liberty. The enemy is active.
The temperance people are either overconfident or else they lose heart. The battle can never be won, we must be constantly on the alert to guard our homes. I beg of you on the morrow to stand at your posts and say that moral welfare is higher than temporal. Stand by what you have laid down as your rule of action and God will give you the victory. The influence on other towns will be immeasurable. I have large hopes for the nation and for the world. Sometimes things look dark but then take heart of hope and look forward. Some day we will all see the value of a human life and when that day dawns no saloon door will swing open, and no one will profit or become famous by this work. Some day we shall live like brothers, each counting the other better than himself. Inspired with love and hope go forth to a grandier victory than ever before. "God save the Commonwealth of Massachusetts."
The chorus then rendered a fine selection, "To Thee, O Country," after which Mr. Crosby introduced the next speaker, Representative Albert S. Apsey of Cambridge. Mr. Apsey remarked that it had been jokingly said that the famous "Cambridge idea" meant "No license for Cambridge and rapid transit to Boston," but this was not in any sense true. The time when it was possible to argue and convince men who honestly believe that no license is impossible has gone by. They said that it was impossible to successfully inaugurate a policy of no license. We have proved it not only a possibility, but a grand success. When a majority want it, the law can be and will be enforced, if they insist upon it. The cause of the first no-license victory in Cambridge was a political occurrence, showing the people that the saloon power was getting a grip upon the politics of the city that it was almost impossible to shake off. This power has also controlled and governed politics in other towns.
There are economic reasons favoring no license. Under this policy the savings banks of Cambridge have shown a large increase of deposits. But, even if no license did not pay from a financial point of view. It seems unnecessary to say these things to the citizens of Arlington, which has been a leader in this matter. Let us consider for a few minutes what it is necessary for us to do to continue this policy. Organization is needed to get out the vote to keep the town in the no-license column. There are many kinds of patriotism and heroism—that of the soldier and sailor, for example—but there is another kind, that while not so splendid in appearance is equally necessary, that of the man who goes to the caucuses and the polls, and putting aside selfish interests attends to these duties without hope of reward.
There are two dangers which we face.
The first is disunion. No distinction should be made of race, creed or color, but all should unite for the cause. Then there is the possibility of fanatics.
Every man who believes in anything, very much becomes a fanatic; and there are some things that can be carried too far. The prosecution of druggists in Cambridge and some other towns is an example of this, and there is other radical legislation that, if pushed too far, will hurt the cause. So long as we are united we will be victorious. Let us, forgetting all political differences, race, creed and color, remember that we must unite, and stay united, fighting under one banner in the cause of purity and good citizenship throughout the world.
After another selection by the chorus, Mendelssohn's "Gloria," Mr. Crosby presented Rev. Charles H. Watson, D.
D., pastor of the Arlington Baptist Church, as the last speaker. Mr. Watson said that he felt that another speech was not necessary; the audience had heard so much that was good and true.
He could not, however, refrain from saying how pleased he had been listening to the young men who had spoken.
It is a good omen when our young men come out and take a position on such an important reform as this. This is as near an ideal meeting as we have ever held, and I hope we will hold our ideal meeting before many years, when our

How Balloons Are Made.
Balloons are manufactured of gold beater's skin, which, though small toy ones had been made of it, could not be produced in sufficient quantities for the large balloons until Colonel Temple invented and perfected the process, which is briefly as follows:
The gold beater's skin is made up of quantities of a certain thin animal membrane (30,000 of these are required for a balloon of 10,000 cubic feet capacity), which is first freed from all fatty substances and then soaked in a solution of glycerin and water. They are then applied to boards cut in the form and to the size of the gore of the balloon required. Others are then super-posed, until a thickness of four layers has been reached, great care being taken that no air bubbles remain between the skins. After this fourth layer a method of strengthening is resorted to in the shape of a net manufactured of skin.
After this net two or three more layers of membranes are applied.
The whole is then allowed to dry, and a solution of boiled linseed oil is used as a varnish. The fabric is then quite in-dissoluble, and the membranes cannot by any possible means be separated from one another, but sometimes, to render this homogeneity the more perfect, a solution of bichromate of potash is sponged over the fabric.—Pall Mall Magazine.
Beautiful Viennese Women.
Vienna, the capital of Austria, is chiefly noted for producing three things —coffee, music and women. The word "jolly" describes the temper of the Viennese woman most aptly. She lives only for today and lets the morrow take care of itself. She is as good a housekeeper as her German sister, but not quite so particular. She is quite as economical, but dresses herself more artistically. She is just as good a mother, but a more loving wife. She is somewhat nervous, and the quarrel with her husband is as regular as the amen in her prayer. The truest and prettiest type of the beautiful Viennese woman is that which comes from the south. In common with the majority of her European sisters, the Viennese makes marriage her goal, but retains her girlish ways, her jolly spirit and much of her beauty, and even to guess at her age is not only a crime, but an absurdity.— Edward A. Steiner in Woman's Home Companion.
Blankets of Bark.
In Ecuador, one of the South American republics, the bark of a tree which grows on the slopes of the Andes is utilized for the making of blankets.
The blanket is over six feet long and over five feet wide and is as soft and pliable as though it were made of flannel.
It is about the thickness of a good flannel blanket and can be rolled up and put in a strap without hurting or injuring it.
This tree or bark blanket is merely a strip of bark cut from a section of the trunk of the blanket or demajagua tree.
The Indians make a cutting around the trunk to get it, and they prepare it by soaking it in water until it is soft. It is then pounded so that the rough outside can be stripped off and the inside alone left. The inside is of fine fibers so joined together by nature that it makes a beautiful blanket, warm enough to be used as a cover and soft enough for a mattress.
Poison Hemlock.
Water hemlock is a deadly plant common in most country neighborhoods.
Its roots are eaten often in spring by mistake for some edible root, and death frequently results. Cattle are often poisoned by drinking water in marshes where it grows.
The poison hemlock from which the Greeks made poisons is a near relative to the water hemlock. It stands from two to seven feet high and has clusters of small white flowers and large, pars-leylike leaves. The stalk, being hollow, is often made into whistles by country boys, and many children are poisoned in this fashion.
Mixed Berries.
A young tailor named Berry, lately succeeded to his father's business, once sent in his account to Charles Matthews somewhat ahead of time, whereupon Matthews, with virtuous rage, wrote him the following note:
"You must be a goose—Berry to send me your bill—Berry, before it is due—Berry. Your father, the elder—Berry, would have had more sense. You may look very black—Berry, and feel very blue—Berry, but I don't care a straw—Berry for you and your bill—Berry."— "Cyclopedia of Anecdotes." Salt For Small Change.
Besides the Maria Theresa 1780 dollars the people of Abyssinia for small change use a bar of hard crystallized salt, about 10 inches long and 3 1/4 inches broad and thick, slightly tapering toward the end, five of which go to the dollar at the capital. It is a token of affection among the natives when friends meet to give to each other a lick of their respective bars, and in this way the material value of the salt is also decreased.
Didn't Stammer All the Time.
An electrical engineer who stutters once endeavored to be cured of the habit, and for that purpose went to an institution near Boston. The manager,
